AUTHENTIC.

FROM THE AURORA.

The undersigned minister plenipotentiary of the French republic, in conformity to the orders of his government, has the honor of transmitting to the Secretary of State of the United States, a resolution taken by the executive directory of the French Republic, on the 14th Messidor, 4th year, relative to the conduct which the ships of war of the republic are to hold towards neutral vessels. The flag of the republic will treat the flag of neutrals in the same manner as they shall suffer it to be treated by the English.

The sentiments which the American government have manifested to the undersigned minister plenipotentiary, do not permit him to doubt, that they will see in its true light, this measure, as far as it may concern the United States, that it is dictated by imperious circumstances, and approved by justice.

Great-Britain, during the war she has carried on against the republic, has not ceased using every means in her power to add to that scourge, scourges still more terrible. She has used the well known liberality of the French nation to the detriment of that nation. Knowing how faithful France has always been in the observance of her treaties—knowing that it was a principle of the republic to respect the flag of all nations, the British government, from the beginning of the war, has caused neutral vessels, and in particular American vessels, to be detained, taken them into their ports, and dragged from them Frenchmen and French property. France, bound by a treaty with the United States, could find only a real disadvantage in the articles of that treaty, which caused to be respected as American property, English property found on board American vessels. They had a right, under this consideration, to expect, that America would take steps in favour of her violated neutrality. One of the predecessors of the undersigned, in July 1793, applied on this subject to the government of the United States, but he was not successful. Nevertheless, the national convention, who by their decree of the 9th May, 1793, had ordered the seizure of enemy's property on board neutral vessels, declaring at the same time that the measure should cease when the English should respect neutral flags, had excepted, on the 23d of the same month, the Americans from the operation of this general order. But the convention was obliged soon to repeal the law which contained this exception so favorable to Americans—The manner in which the English conducted themselves—the manifest intentions they had to stop the exportation of provisions from America to France, rendered it unavoidable.

The national convention, by this, had restored the equilibrium of neutrality which England had destroyed—had discharged their duty in a manner justified by a thousand past examples, as well as by the necessity of the then existing moment. They might, therefore, to recall the orders they had given to seize the enemy's property on board American vessels, have waited till the British government had first definitively revoked the same order, a suspension only of which was produced by the embargo laid by Congress the 26th of March, 1794. But as soon as they were informed, that, under orders of the government of the United States, Mr. Jay was directed to remonstrate against the vexatory measures of the English, they gave orders by the law of the 13th Nivose, 3d year, to the ships of war of the republic, to respect American vessels; and the committee of public safety, in their explanatory resolve of the 14th of the same month, hastened to sanction the same principles. The national convention and the committee of public safety had every reason to believe that this open and liberal conduct would determine the United States to use every effort to put a stop to the vexations imposed upon their commerce, to the injury of the French republic. They were deceived in this hope—and tho' the treaty of friendship, commerce, and navigation, between Great Britain and the United States, had been signed six weeks before France adopted the measure I have just spoken of, the English did not abandon the plan they had formed, and continued to stop and carry into their ports all American vessels bound to French ports or returning from them.

This conduct was the subject of a note, which the undersigned addressed, on the 7th Vendemaire, 4th year, [29th September, 1795, O. S.] to the Secretary of State. The remonstrances which it contained were founded upon the duties of neutrality, upon the principles which Mr. Jefferson had laid down in his letter to Mr. Pinckney, dated the 13th September, 1793, yet this note has remained without an answer, though recalled to the remembrance of the Secretary of State by a dispatch of the 9th Germinal, 4th year [29th March, 1796, O. S.] and American vessels bound to French ports, or returning from them, have still been seized by the English. Indeed more—they have added a new vexation to those they had already imposed upon Americans—They have impressed seamen from on board American vessels, and have thus found means of strengthening their crews at the expence of the Americans, without the government of the United States having made known to the undersigned the steps they had taken to obtain satisfaction for this violation of neutrality, so hurtful to the interests of France, as the undersigned had set forth in his dispatches to the Secretary of State of the 9th Germinal, 4th year [29th March, 1796, O. S.] 19th Germinal, [8th April, 1796] and 1st Floreal, [20th April, 1796] which have remained without an answer.

The French government, then, finds itself, with respect to America, at the present time, in circumstances similar to those of '93; and it sees itself obliged to abandon, with respect to them and neutral powers in general, the favorable line of conduct they had pursued, and to adopt different measures, the blame should fall upon the British government—It is their conduct which the French government have been obliged to follow.

The undersigned Minister Plenipotentiary conceives it his duty to remark to the Secretary of State, that the neutral government or the allies of the Republic have nothing to fear as to the treatment of their flag by the French since, if keeping within the bounds of their neutrality, they cause the rights of that neutrality to be respected by the English, the Republic will respect them. But through weakness, partiality or if other motives, they should suffer the English to sport with that neutrality, and turn it to their advantage, could they then complain, when France, to restore the balance of neutrality to its equilibrium, shall act in the same manner as the English? No, certainly; for the neutrality of a nation consists in granting to belligerent powers the same advantages, and that neutrality no longer exists when, in the course of the war, that neutral nation grants to one of the belligerent powers, advantages not stipulated by treaties anterior to the war, or suffer that power to seize upon them. The neutral government cannot then complain if the other belligerent power will enjoy advantages which its enemy enjoys, or, if it seizes on them; otherwise that neutral government would deviate, with respect to it, from the line of neutrality and would become its enemy.

The undesigned Minister Plenipotentiary thinks it useless further to develope these principles. He does no doubt that the Secretary of State feels all their force, and that the government of the United States will maintain from all violation a neutrality which France has always respected, and will always respect when her enemies do not make it turn to her detriment.

The undesigned Minister Plenipotentiary embraces this opportunity of reiterating to the Secretary of State the assurance of his esteem, and informs him, at the same time, that he will cause this note to be printed, in order to make publicly known the motives which, at the present juncture influence the French Republic.

Done at Philadelphia, 6th Brumaire, 5th year of the French Republic, one and indivisible, (27th Oct. 1796, O. S.) (Signed) P. A. ADET.

Extract from the Register of resolves of the Executive Directory, of the 14th Messidor, 4th year of the French Republic, one and indivisible.

The Executive Directory, considering that if it becomes the faith of the French nation to respect treaties or conventions which secure to the flags of some neutral or friendly powers, commercial advantages, the result of which is to be common to the contracting powers; those same advantages (if they should turn to the benefit of our enemies, either through weakness of our allies or of neutrals, or through fear, through interested views, or through whatever motives) would ipso facto warrant the execution of the articles in which they were stipulated.

DECREES AS FOLLOW:

All neutral or allied powers shall, without delay be notified, that the flag of the French Republic will treat neutral vessels, either as to confiscation, as to searches, or capture in the same manner as they shall suffer the English to treat them.

The Minister of Foreign relations is charged with the execution of the present resolve, which shall not be printed.

A true Copy.

—VIA BALTIMORE.—

BRISTOL, SEPTEMBEE 24.

POSTSCRIPT.

LONDON, Thursday Night.

Yesterday, Dutch papers to the 23d instant inclusive, were received at the office of one of his majesty's principal secretaries of state. These papers, the writers of which can scarcely be suspected of fabricating any thing inimical to the cause of the French, contain accounts from Jourdan's army as late as the 9th inst. By these accounts it appears, that the Archduke had vigorously pursued his flying foe; that Jourdan, driven back to the Rhine, attempted on the 8th to make a stand on its right bank. He received the attack of the victorious Austrians and again experienced a complete defeat—so complete, that it is reasonably concluded his army is almost wholly annihilated. On the 9th, general Jourdan himself is stated to have crossed the Rhine, with a small body of attendants. The Austrians were said to be in possession of Frankfort.

Two different Dutch papers of the same date, likewise state, that Moreau had experienced a defeat at Ingolstadt. This circumstance is strongly supported by probability; for the Austrian army under general Latour, reinforced by 40,000 men, and no doubt invigorated by the accounts of the Archduke's rapid success, would feel itself in a state to act offensively. The advices by this day's Hamburg Mail confirm this supposition.

The Dutch papers above quoted, further state the accounts of a victory gained in the Tyrol, over the French army under the command of general Massena. No particulars of this last affair are given; but this account is corroborated by advice received yesterday by the Neapolitan ambassador; which state some advantages gained by the Neapolitan army, acting in conjunction with the Austrians, in considerable force against the French.

This morning arrived in town the Hamburg Mail due on Sunday last. It gives an ample confirmation to the news above stated to have reached town yesterday in the Dutch papers.

Jourdan's defeat and retreat are painted in still stronger colours than they have yet appeared in this country. The left wing of his army is said, in a letter from Wesel of the 10th, to have been entirely cut off, and that it was not known what had become of it. The loss in artillery and baggage sustained by the French has been very great.

Letters from Cologne of the 9th state that part of Jourdan's army had began to cross the Rhine.

An article from Ratisbon of the 2d, contains the account of an action having taken place on the 1st instant, between the Austrian and French army under General Moreau. This action took place between Ingolstadt and Geisenfeldt. Moreau was completely defeated, and the loss is stated to have been considerable on both sides.

The mail likewise confirms the report of general Massena's defeat in the Tyrol.

An intimation has been given to our ministers from the Empress of Russia, through the medium of her ambassador at our court that she is ready, if peace should not be immediately concluded, to march an army of 50,000 men into Germany, to act against the French, in conjunction with the Austrians. This circumstance is by no means an unpleasant one, even should a negociation take place. To obtain fair and honorable terms of peace, it is essential that we should be prepared for a vigorous prosecution of the war.

Letters have been received in the city from Leghorn, stating, in positive terms, the death of general Buonaparte; but no particulars are mentioned.

Mr. Hammond, under secretary of state landed at Scarborough on Monday. He brought over with him Captain Anstruther's dispatches, which he forwarded to town, and arrived yesterday morning.

No passport, nor answer to the application said to be made for one, has yet reached this country. Whatever that answer may be, it cannot be said that the Directory have rashly given it.

An express was received late last evening from Paris, with an account of some signal victories obtained by the French army in Italy.

OFFICIAL ACCOUNT OF JOURDAN's RETREAT.

FROM THE LONDON GAZETTE, SEP. 23.

The following Dispatch has been received by the right hon. lord Grenville, his majesty's principal secretary of state for foreign affairs.

Head-quarters of his royal highness the archduke Charles, Windecken, Sept. 10.

MY LORD,

I have the satisfaction of informing your lordship, that the progress of the Austrian arms continues to be marked by brilliant and uninterrupted success.

His royal highness the archduke, having quitted his camp near Wurtzburg, on the 5th, pushed on a strong advanced guard, under the command of lieut. gen. Kray, to secure the De Bouche of the Spessart. That officer, arriving in the neighbourhood of Aschaffenburg in the afternoon of the 6th found the enemy, to the number of two thousand men, posted so as to dispute the pass from the forest. After a severe cannonade, which lasted a considerable time, he attacked them with much spirit, drove them from their advantageous position, and his cavalry still pursuing them without hesitation, thro' the woods on the other side of the Meyn. The loſs of the enemy on this occaſion, amounts to above a thouſand men, 600 of whom are priſoners.

The Archduke advanced on the 7th to Aſchaffenburg, where the main body halted on the 8th; but intelligence being received that the enemy had abandoned Frankfort the preceding night the advanced guards were puſhed on ſucceſſively to the Kintzig and Nidea.

On the 9th his royal highneſs marched to Dettingen, and on the 10th to Windecken; the advanced guards occupying the important poſt of Friedburg.

Ten thouſand men, drawn from the garriſon of Mayence, had advanced towards Konigſtein, which was abandoned by the enemy on the 8th, and will be a very eſſential reinforcement of infantry to the army.

The conſequences of theſe rapid and deciſive movements, have exceeded the expectations of the moſt ſanguine, and have uniformly fruſtrated the deſigns and efforts of the enemy.

Jourdan, who after the action of the 3d, had directed his retreat on to Fulda was ſtill in hopes of gaining, before the archduke, the ſtrong poſition of Bergen, where, reinforced by the two diviſions which had been left behind in the neighbourhood of Frankfort, he might have checked for a time the progreſs of the Auſtrians. In this view, he arrived, by forced marches, at Schluititern, on the great road from Fulda to Hanou, in the evening of the 6th — but finding that the duke was already maſter of Aſchaffenburg, he gave up his attempt, and, turning to the right, directed his march acroſs the Vogelſburg towards Wetzlar, where, it is reported, he is endeavoring to aſſemble his army.

From information of the moſt authentic nature, relative to the preſent ſituation of the French troops, I can venture to aſſure your lordſhip, that they are in a ſtate of the utmoſt confuſion and deſpondency. A great part of the infantry have thrown away their arms, and are almoſt naked.—The retreat has loſt all ſemblance of order, and has become a tumultuous flight. Exceſſive fatigue has probably deſtroyed more of them than the ſword; and the continual dread they entertain of a general riſing of the peaſantry in the countries they traverſe, has ſpread a panic among them, which renders them deaf to the commands of their officers. The loſs which Jourdan has ſuſtained ſince he advanced from the Lahn, may be eſtimated, without exaggeration, at twenty thouſand men; a number which muſt be daily increaſed by deſertion, in the preſent ſtate of his army.

The conduct of the French, during their abode in this country, has exhibited a ſcene of depravity, which is degrading to human nature. Robbery and peculation have been univerſal in every rank and in every department of the army.

Every ſpecies of violence has been exerciſed on the perſons as well as on the properties of individuals. Many villages have been reduced to aſhes, without the exiſtence of even a pretext for this act of barbarity; and the countries, through which their army has paſſed, exhibit every where a ſpectacle of the utmoſt deſolation and diſtreſs.

I have the honor to be, &c.

R. ANSTRUTHER, Capt. 3d Guards.

Ten Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the ſubſcriber, on the 25th ult. an apprentice lad, named JOHN ARUNDELL, about 16 years old, by trade a Cooper, 5 feet 7 or 8 inches high, has light hair, grey eyes, and a brazen look. Had on when he went away, a good fur hat, a thick cloth coatee of an olive colour, a velvet under jacket, a Ruſſia ſheeting ſhirt, linen trouſers, and a pair of calf ſkin ſhoes with ſtrings. It is probable he may change his name, as he ran away before, and called himſelf Thomas Locke. Whoever takes up the ſaid apprentice, and brings him to me, ſhall have the above reward.

All thoſe articles to be ſold low for caſh or country produce.

Alex. Nov. 8, 1796.

A VERY VALUABLE MERCHANT MILL, A DISTILLERY AND BREWERY, AND SUNDRY STONE QUARRIES TO BE LET.

I WILL rent my Merchant Mill at the Little Falls of Potowmac, for any term, not less than seven, or more than eleven years, from the first day of September next. The Mill house is 42 by 40 feet, three stories high, built with stone, and has in it 3 pair of French burr stons, two overshot 18 feet water wheels, and Evans's machinery complete, with every other thing proper and necessary for carrying on the business with dispatch, and at as little expence as possible, all in good order.—From the mill to my landing on the Potomac river, (where crafts of any burthen may deliver grain, and take in flour) it is about 40 yards, and from thence by water to George-Town and the City of Washington, about three miles, and to Alexandria about 11 miles. This situation aided by a sufficient capital, will command the produce of a very extensive back country, where large quantities of wheat and other grain is annually made, the distance to it being from 8 to 10 miles less, than to any market town upon the navigation of the Potowmack. There are on the premisses a large stone Cooper's shop, a stone granery and a commodious Miller's house. At the landing aforesaid a bridge is now building over the Potomac, which is in great forwardness and probably will be finished the ensuing Fall.

There are also on the premises a Brewery and Distillery built with stone, in them are three stills, two coppers or boilers, with every necessary article, all new, and in good order, and sufficiently large to carry on the Brewery and Distillery, upon a very extensive plan. This property I will rent for the same term of years.

Upon my lands adjoining the premises, and along the banks of the river, where crafts may load with ease and dispatch, is an immense quantity of building and foundation stones, four quarries are now open, and as many more may be opened with ease, the stone taken from these quarries is better, and has the preference at this market, to any other stone brought to it. I will rent these quarries seperately or together as may best suit.

Upon the top of the hill, and about 200 yards from the Mill is a stone Dwelling house, large enough for the accommodation of a family, also, a kitchen, Dairy, smoke house, &c. and a garden enclosed, and in cultivation, the soil of which is equal in goodness to any in this state. I will also rent this property.

Adjoining to the Brewery and Distillery is a Smith's shop in which is a complete set of Blacksmith's tools, which I will also rent, and if agreeable I will hire to the tenant two negro blacksmiths, one of them is a complete workman.

If I rent out the stone quarries, I will sell three crafts which were built for the purpose of carrying stone. They will altogether bring upwards of 90 perch. Immediate possession will be given, for terms apply to the subscriber in this town.

The Mill, Brewery and Distillery with their appurtenances will be delivered to the tenant or tenants in good repair, and must be so returned, at the expiration of the lease or leases.

Blank Manifests for sale at this Office.

TO BE SOLD,

At Frankfort, on Friday the 18th day of November next,

Two Tracts of Land in Hampshire County, the one containing 300 acres, lies on George's run, about one and a half miles from Frankfort, and very near to Patterson's creek, which is navigable for boats to the north branch. This land is well timbered and watered, having a fine stream running through it, and a variety of springs. The quality of the high land is good, and has thirty acres of excellent land, which may be easily converted into meadow. There are only a few acres of this land cleared, and of course the improvements inconsiderable.

There is on this tract a good seat for a saw mill, with a fine stream of water. The land is not more than two miles from the waters of Capon, where saw logs, scantling, and other materials for building are with great facility transported to the Potowmac. There is no land cleared on this tract, and it affords good healthy situations for building on.

There will also be sold on Tuesday the 22d of November, at the house of Mr. Joseph Nevil of Hardy county, a tract of land adjoining to his farm, containing 415 acres. This tract is full of good timber and well watered, and the soil good for mountain land. Some meadow may be made on said tract. It enjoys several conveniences. The main road leading to Moorfield, running through the land.

The terms of sale will be made known by Charles Little, who acts as executor to Col. John Carlyle, and also under a power of attorney from the executors of John Carlyle, John Dalton, and Wm. Ramsay, Gentlemen, dec'd.

The subscriber will attend at Frankfort, on Wednesday and Thursday preceding the sale of the two Hampshire tracts to shew the land and plats if required. And on Monday preceding the sale of the Hardy tract, he will attend at the house of Mr. Joseph Nevil for the above purpose.

Alexandria, Nov. 10.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 31st of October, 1796, at the General office of the Mutual Assurance Society against Fire on Buildings, it was resolved—

Two letters, one from Mr. Jonah Thompson, and one from Mr. Robert T. Hooe, were laid before the Board, and on consideration it is decided again, —That the constitution forbids them to issue any policy until the sum of fifteen hundred thousand dollars has had the premium paid on it, and that the Principal Agent signify the same to Mr. Thompson and Mr. Hooe, and give them every satisfaction and information on the subject, which the nature of the case will admit; and also, that as much of Mr. Thompson's letter as is adviseable, on the duties of investment of the money, the Board thank him for; but, as a General Meeting will take place in a few weeks, the Directory prefer submitting to that meeting, in what proportions they wish investments to be made in any one fund, rather than an immediate decision.

By order of the Board of Directors,

The famous Boston hand-bill, altho' dated the 24th of September, did not appear in any paper of that place until the 27th of October, when it was printed in the Independent Chronicle, under the Baltimore head: Notwithstanding it was published as coming from Baltimore, the printers have inadvertantly given it the same date as that of their own paper.

AUTHENTIC.

The minister plenipotentiary of the French republic near the United States of America, to the French citizens who reside or travel in the said United States.

Citizens,

From the dawn of our revolution, the tri-coloured cockade has been the rallying point of those energetic men, whose generous efforts gave the first blows to arbitrary power. At their call, the French nation bent for centuries under the yoke, shook off that long drowsiness, twenty-four millions of men adopted that august symbol, they exclaimed "we shall be free," and all opposition wa defeated and the throne tumbled down in the dust, and all Europe armed against them, has been vanquished.

The republic decorates all her citizens with those national colours, the sacred symbol of liberty; which they have won.

Frenchmen who are absent from their native land, ought not, amidst nations allied with the rs, to lay aside the distinctive mark which, by making them known, secures to them the protection and reciprocal respect guaranteed by our treaties with those nations.

Those who, from a guilty indifference, should slight that right, exempt themselves from that duty—those could lay no claim to that protection, they would renounce the support of the agents of the republic. But, Citizens, I am persuaded that at the call of the minister of the French republic, you will hasten to put on the symbol of liberty, which is the fruit of 8 years toils and privations, and of five years victories.

Thus, you will draw a line of demarkation between you and those contemptible beings, whose unfeeling hearts are callous to the sacred name of native land, to the noble pride with which the freeman is animated by the sense of his independence.

Thus, you will signalize those still more degraded beings, who being sold to the enemies of the republic, drag from clime to clime, a life overwhelmed with misery and contempt—wretches whom history will not call to remembrance, except to perpetuate their disgrace.

The use of the French chanceries, the national protection, will not be granted to any Frenchman, but those, who, perfectly sensible of the dignity attached to the title of citizen, shall take a pride in wearing constantly the tricolored cockade. The Executive Directory of the French republic have pronounced thus. Being the organ of their decisions, I communicate them with pleasure to my fellow-citizens. As for those who, altho' Frenchmen born, have ceased to be Frenchmen, I do not speak to them; the public voice will inform them of their exclusion.

Done at Philadelphia, the 12th Brumaire, the 5th year of the French Republic, one and indivisible.

(Signed) P. A. ADET.

In the city and township, the votes were

For the other ticket - -	1091

Hereafter there can be no questions as to the Federalism of the State of Vermont.

From the Rutland Herald, of the 14th of October.

At the late election of a representative for the Eastern district of this state to Congress, the whole number of votes was 3019—of these 2931 were for Mr. Buck. The scattering votes amounted to 88, of which not more than three were for the same person. We are happy to find that Mr. Buck's exertions and Federalism, have met with the universal approbation of his constituents.

The communication from the secretary of state to Mr. Adet, is highly interesting.

It contains a clear, but severe censure of the French conduct towards this country, in the flagrant violation of treaty and a pointed disapprobation of the minister's conduct in publishing a letter, without permission of the executive.

The fact is, the mode of doing this business, is an electioneering trick. The publication, at this moment, was doubtless intended to aid the election of Mr. Jefferson. The time and the mention of Mr. Jefferson in the letter, disclosed the cloven foot. It is more.—It is a revival of Genet's base plan, of appealing to the people, and addressing their fears.

Gracious heavens! is it possible that the French have the audacity, thus to attempt to influence the decision of the election! It is a serious fact, and an insult that the people of America will resent with indignation. If any thing under heaven could defeat Mr. Jefferson's election, this outrageous attempt on the Freedom of election by a foreign minister, certainly will have that effect. Citizens of America, attend!

N. B. A bond and ashler is prepared for the inspection of any person disposed to give in proposals.

C. MYERS,

Enginier to the Potomack Company.

City of Washington, April 19.

AT a Meeting of the Board of Directors held on the 3d of September, '96, at the General Office of the Mutual Assurance Society against fire on buildings in the State:—Resolved that the following be published.

Doubts having arisen under the Constitution, Rules and Regulations of the said Society, whether those who had paid their premiums unto the Cashier-general, had their property insured from the day of payment. The following question has been submitted to John Marshall, John Wickham, and Edmund Randolph, Esqs.—to wit:

Are those persons who have paid, or may hereafter pay, their respective premiums entitled to the benefit of assurance, under the law constituting the Society, and the constitution, rules, and regulations thereof, before the premiums upon the certified value of buildings to the amount of 1,500,000 dollars are paid?

Who have each given his opinion at large, all agreeing, that the insurance takes place from the day of payment, although the premium to the amount of 1,500,000 dollars have not been paid in; and although the policies have not issued. And as it appears that those who have given in their declarations are bound to pay the premiums, with an interest thereon, and may be subject to pay for their proportion of losses, in addition, although they are not to have the benefit of insurance until they pay their premiums, will readily see in how disadvantageous a situation they stand while they remain delinquents.

By order of the Directors,

WILLIAM F. AST,

Principal Agent.
